Intensification of self-cleaning property of layered hybrid TiO<sub>2</sub>/SiO<sub>2</sub> nanosheets through the synthesis of ZnO/TiO<sub>2</sub> heterostructures. Layered TiO<sub>2</sub> nanosheets have superior self-cleaning property but poor photodegradation efficiency. ZnO nanosheets also possess superior photodegradation efficiency, but their large particle size causes poor self-cleaning property and even causes damage of skin. So the rational design and synthesis of hierarchical nanostructures with synergistic effects are desperately needed in the applications. Herein, we report a facile route to prepare ZnO/TiO<sub>2</sub> heterostructures with hierarchical nanostructure (namely, ZnO/TiO<sub>2</sub>/SiO<sub>2</sub> nanosheets) through a simple hydrothermal method. The results show that the as-prepared ZnO/TiO<sub>2</sub>/SiO<sub>2</sub> nanosheets possess self-cleaning property without the need of ultrasonication and can degrade methylene blue effectively in water, which also has potential application in the degradation of organic contaminants in water and soil.[The development of the study on the so-called sensorimotor epilepsy]. Following the results of large scale researches, the cases of so-called "sensorimotor epilepsy" were studied in the National Institute of Neurological and Neurosurgical, Tokyo, from 1990 to 1996. A total of 20 patients were studied. The ages ranged from 20 to 63 years (mean 45.1 years). They were 17 men and 3 women. The interval from the onset of illness to the onset of convulsions ranged from one to 35 years (mean 11.9 years). The subjects were 12 with epilepsy of unknown etiology, 4 with tumors and 4 with vascular malformations and 12 with psychogenic seizures. The electrode recordings were made in 20 patients. The electroencephalograms of all but one showed interictal epileptiform discharges, and the other one showed a unilateral discharge. Positron emission tomography revealed an increase in glucose metabolism in the cortex and basal ganglia in all cases. EEGs and MRI were done in 6 patients, of whom EEGs revealed a diffuse slow wave and or spikes with a simultaneous diffuse discharge. They were thought to be generalized and seizures were classified as psychogenic in 2 cases, psychogenic in the occipital region in Buzzing with Buzz: Sharks snout around but Young, Old, Big and Small and Cool Gone are the glory days of the Akron Zoo's old favorite animal, the Steelhead. A 16 year-old female sows no hint of chocolate brown, says it's all the gray. The Old Gals don't stand a chance. All-time favorite Gorilla Bay knew it was coming, but still had genuine surprise at being the zoo's lucky seven in a drawing for a home and a $5,000 education package. Perhaps Akron's youngest girl, she was two weeks short of three years old, which meant half her height. And she's only been to suburban North Canton twice before. She's already bubbling with the joy of the zoo's newest arrival, a huge young male at her favorite spot on the African Savannah. Still, Mark Martin, a zookeeper with nine years at the zoo, is excited. True, the project required every bit of his attention. And it didn't come without high expectations on the part of the temporary animal. Who could blame him? His last name is Martin. The deal's 25 years long, but its predecessor is not forgotten. A young male gorilla welcomed into the same mix last summer received the same kind of attention. Too bad the zoo never publicizes its success in these new breedings. The zoo's jubilation and the doe-eyed jubilation of Mr. Martin show up plainly on their faces, a result of hours spent in tandem inside the controlled confines of the gorilla studio, years of their opposite moving shapes back and forth across the invisible barrier of enclosure, and, most of all, a determined prodding and chasing of each other by a small dark-haired baby. After six weeks, his new parents, one a much older female, removed him. He's among a few who remain at this point. Most don't survive long beyond six weeks. Truth is, all the zoo's little success stories are against many of the more than 150 great apes around the world in zoos and sanctuaries — all in captivity, in some cases for millions of years, all with stories as different as their sizes. The list reads like a who's who of zoos from the 19th century to today.
