Chesin is a central player in the trafficking of ligands and receptors in the immune system. Apical-basolateral cell polarity in polarized epithelia is mediated by the cytoskeletal protein ezrin, which associates with the plasma membrane to polarize the apical region. This is maintained by cortactin, which binds to the polybasic tail of ezrin. Here we identified a novel protein that binds to the polybasic region of ezrin (Cheslin). In various epithelia, cheslin is enriched at the apical membrane. Upon endocytosis, cheslin is shifted from the apical to the basolateral membrane in the course of its recycling. In the apical membrane of polarized epithelial cells, cheslin co-localizes with ezrin and cortactin. Coimmunoprecipitation studies revealed associations of cheslin with ezrin, moesin, cortactin, and the Nedd4-2 ubiquitin ligase. These associations are conserved in vertebrates. Their significance is underlined by alterations of cell-cell adhesion in cheslin-deficient mouse embryonic stem cells. Our data establish cheslin as a central player in regulating cell
